HTML Help

D2000 system configuration online reference help has been created by means of Microsoft HTML Help. HTML Help is a technology based on the HTML standard (Hypertext Markup Language). HTML Help uses the basic components of Microsoft Internet Explorer. It provides easy controls for navigation allowing users to gain and search for required information.

HTML Help allows creating online documentation that may be updated via the Internet which provides the latest information and updates of the documentation. Using the Internet as the method for documentation updates also makes it easier for users to gain documentation innovations. Reference guide The D2000 System Configuration uses the benefits provided by the latest technology of source usage available on the Internet.
