

Create a New Application

Creating a new D2000 system application

Installation creates an empty application directory. The directory can contain several applications (application configurations), each of which has its own subdirectory with the name identical with the application name.

D2000 system allows to operate just one application (application configuration) in given time.

Creating a new application is performed by using the D2000 Application Manager.