

Home Group of Objects

Home group of objects

Home group is an object of Object group type that is generated automatically for each user. Object name is derived from the user's logon name and by adding the prefix "Home_". The Home group is created during the creation of a new user and the user has the access to this group with Modify access level. Then, if the user creates any new object in the D2000 system (graph, picture,...), this object is automatically assigned to the home group. This method automatically provides access to the objects to the user who created them.

Related pages:

Object groups