

Data Representation in the D2000 System

Data representation in the D2000 System

D2000 System provides various methods for displaying object values, object descriptions and other data.

Object value representation methods are described in the topic Value representation methods in the D2000 system.

The displaying of multilanguage data other than object value is described in the topic Dictionary.