

Complete synchronization

D2000 CfgSynchro - complete synchronization

This type of synchronization at first erases the destination configuration database completely and then the contents of the whole source configuration databases is copied into it.